Developed in 1953 in New York, Jonagold is a cross between the crisp Golden Delicious and the blush-crimson Jonathan. Jonagolds form a large sweet fruit with a thin skin. Because of their large size they are now favored by commercial growers in many parts of the world. Excellent for eating, salads, sauces and baking. Good for pies. Eckert's Jonathan apples typically ripen in September.

"Superimposed on the black stripe is a golden wreath of fig leaves. The cultivated fig is a native of Africa, and ranks as one of the most ancient of life-sustaining fruits. Centered within the golden wreath is a blunted Moorish boarding sword, symbol of leadership carried by the great Moorish leaders of the 8th century. The sword represents the strength and authority exhibited by a black ...
