When Kids Cant Read What

By the way, kids have many more bad dreams when they watch scary or violent TV shows or movies or read scary books or stories before bedtime. Instead of doing those kinds of things, try thinking good thoughts before bed. Imagine a favorite place or activity or think of all the people who care about you.

My kids love funny books for our read-alouds but I've noticed recently that most of the characters in our books have been white. Some of our recent reads are Ivy Pocket, Nanny Piggins, and Stinkbomb and Ketchup Face. The only funny book that comes to mind that we've read aloud with a non-white main character is Alvin Ho.

F or as long as she can remember, Joanne Osmond has gone to bed at midnight and awakened around 3:30 a.m.. Not restless. Not groggy. Wide awake, ready for a new day. Like others in her family, Osmond is a super-sleeper. For seven decades, she's packed her prolonged days full of activity: as an adviser to small businesses, a member of her local school board, a state-level education leader, a ...
